A CRAZY LITTLE THING CALLED LAW

A NEW TRUE CRIME PODCAST

ABOUT - EXTENDED

In a nation blatantly divided in current events politically, and often socioeconomically, who can we as Americans count on for realistic depictions of what it's like to be an average citizen seeking justice within our government layers? Turn on, tune in, drop out and check your perspective in this humorous true crime show with writer Billie Proffitt and Miss LVK - two 30-something smart-aleck Californian blondes who share the actual processes of Proffitt's 2-styles-of-democracy, 5-lawsuit-long, 6-plus-years-and-counting story and the impossible injustices of losing everything to a now nouveau riche Australian coal heir named Nicholas Butta.

PRESS/REVIEWS

What The Little Birds Are Saying...

"I really enjoyed it! I have so many questions for her which really shows how interesting and engaging it is! Also, so relatable. The topics cover a broader spectrum, like the microaggressions that occur in relationships, romantic or otherwise, that have a power struggle, than can eat away at you. The perspective of the non-gruesome true crime story is unique too. The kind of 'holes' in the story made me more curious and doesn't interrupt the fluidity of the story. There's a levity or humor to it even though it's a serious topic. They recognize the kind of white privilege without belittling others' struggles... It's solid."

PRESS/REVIEWS - EXTENDED

"I listened to 'A Crazy Little Thing Called Law' on the recommendation of a friend, and it did not disappoint! I wish there had been more episodes to binge because I kept saying to myself, 'But what happens next?' Billie's story is not one you hear every day. It is full of so much vibrancy and depth, and as she reflects back 11 years after the story, you can feel the growth and wisdom that has come from the heartbreak and agonizing decisions she has been forced to make. To be fair, Billie has been privileged by many of her life's experiences, but she doesn't come across as spoiled or entitled – to the contrary, she comes across as humble and as someone who is doing her best to get by and taking what comes her way (the good and the bad) with strength and compassion. I think what helps this podcast is the connection Billie and Miss LVK have – they have known each other a long time, and you can tell there is a genuine love and admiration between the two. This is what sets this podcast apart from the majority of podcasts out there – this is a real relationship and sisterhood that shines through the microphones of the hosts. We need more of this genuine connection and care in the world. Great job, and I can't wait to continue the journey!"

- Carly

"Wow! I love hearing the hosts' laughs! It makes me feel like I'm right there with them listening live. Billie and LVK have great chemistry! I feel like the story is just starting and look forward to learning some legal terms and expanding my knowledge on law (which is almost zero now) all with a smile on my face with their humorous banter for such a serious subject. Good luck! I can't wait to hear the rest of this story!"

- Jenny

"This podcast does an incredible job in 3 segments outlining the many challenges we all face with the assimilation into the life of marriage and a new family. Billie quickly grasps and describes the personality characteristics that present pervasive challenges in any relationship. I am very intrigued to see how she wades through these issues as they are presented early on as difficult and layered with complexity."
